Documentation, information and sustainability. Educational materials for democracy, recognition and diversity

Local commitment against racism, advice on the subject of right-wing extremism, empowerment strategies and democracy education in daycare centers - numerous civil society projects that are dedicated to such tasks are funded by the federal program "Living Democracy!" of the Federal Ministry for Family, Senior Citizens, Women and Youth. The projects have created a variety of materials: books, brochures, work aids, films, but also web portals, games and music. For other project sponsors, multipliers and interested parties, the knowledge and skills acquired in the individual projects are an invaluable help for the (further) development of effective strategies against right-wing extremism and racism.

In order to make the project materials available to an interested public and to ensure the sustainability of the projects, the Vielfalt-Mediathek of the Informations- und Dokumentationszentrum für Antirassismusbearbeitung e. V. (IDA) since 2006, materials from the current federal programs. The range of topics ranges from prevention and intervention in right-wing extremism, racism, antisemitism, anti-Muslim racism, homophobia, trans* and inter*sexual hostility, religious fundamentalism, migration and migration history to criticism of racism, intercultural learning, diversity, democracy education and much more.

In addition, in the "kurz erklärt" section, terms, concepts and methods in our subject areas are explained in order to make it as easy as possible for people who are starting to deal with the topics. Our project pool presents projects that promote democracy, diversity and recognition. There is also a service offering for users. Through inquiries, the Diversity Media Library can put together material packages tailored to the specific needs of users.
